

August 29, 2008

Sprig.com
Your Daily Green
Style Guide

Sophyto

Sample Kit

Why It's Good:

Beauty products made with fatty acids don't sound terribly glamorous. Yet our intrepid contributing beauty editor Megan O'Neill tried Sophyto's Mega Omegas Day Face Moisturizer, which is made with organic essential fatty acids, and found it to be super light and easy to top with makeup. For those who want to try Sophyto without paying $44, we recommend starting with this sample kit of skin cleansing, toning and hydrating essentials.

Why It's Green:

Not only are these products licensed by Vegan Society UK, which means they're cruelty-free, but each item in this kit is made from over 90% certified organic ingredients that haven't been treated with toxic pesticides, which can run off into water supplies that irrigate crops (i.e., the food we eat.)

Where To Get It:

www.sophytoorganics.com | $25

Sprig.com's mission is to motivate, inspire and inform 95% of the consumer population toward becoming 5% more green, as we believe this approach will have a great positive impact on the environment. Not to mention on you! Green is good for you—for your health, your looks, your bank, and your personal and home style.

Sprig.com is also about the glamour in green: It doesn't have to mean wearing brown, living beige or being crunchy. Sprig.com presents a full, rich menu of little touches, easy strategies and small changes in becoming green. At Sprig, we believe that no matter what you need, or what your heart desires, there's an eco-friendly alternative, and we're here to find it for you. Think of the Sprig staff as your personal shoppers, curating the best and the most beautiful in the world of green. (Please note that we choose products solely based on what we think is fabulous and amazing; we do not profit from our choices.) So while we don't believe that consumption choices alone will save the planet, we do believe that if you gotta shop, might as well shop green—and browse Sprig! Here's who's pulling for you: